College is constantly making improvements to the campus, whether it's tearing down an old dorm and building a new one or renovating the old facilities. This past year, however, the college made more than just a "few" changes to the campus scene. So, the Ravelings staff has created a yearbook that captures all of the changes that have taken place on campus and in our world. We hope you enjoy the change of view!

--Kara Kuhrt, Editor

Our soil has changed. The new additions to the cafeteria, the library, and the destruction of Gibson almost make this seem like a different place. Like this campus, our lives are ever-changing. We are constantly growing, expanding our minds, and discovering new things. A yearbook acts as a frozen moment in time to note the changes on our campus and the changes in us. So pause, and take a moment to appreciate Ravelings.

TERRORISM

These pages are dedicated to those who lost their lives from the incidents occurring on September 11th in New York City, Pennsylvania, and Washington, D.C.

"I feel this way about it. World trade means world peace and consequently the World Trade Center buildings in New York...had a bigger purpose than just to provide room for tenants. The World Trade Center is a living symbol of man's dedication to world peace. The World Trade Center should, because of its importance, become a representation of man's belief in humanity, his need for individual cooperation, and his ability to find greatness."

IN AMERICA

MONMOUTH ASSOCIATES INVOCATION

September 20, 2001

God, in the beginning you created the heavens and the earth, and all that dwell herein, and called your creation good. We have trusted that goodness and now reel in disbelief with the terror that has indelibly etched the unimaginable in our minds and torn asunder our naive assumptions that "it couldn't happen here." We face the wilderness of a world gone mad -- a world in which people of all nations tremble in the face of what few have done. In our grief and disbelief, feeling violated and angry, let us not add to the madness. Let us not give in to the fears that cry for us to stereotype one another on the basis of appearance or religious practice. Gather us in as one people who will stand for justice and strive for peace, that all people everywhere may one day live in peace and unafraid. Amen.

A CHANGE

Demolition crews worked all summer tearing down the old Gibson Hall. When students returned to school in the fall, they saw only a few bricks remaining from Gibson, while Bowers Hall stood in the background. The new co-ed dorm rooms are complete with furniture, air conditioning, and private bathrooms.

Top: With the completion of the track last winter, a fountain was placed at Boucher Plaza near the entrance to Bobby Woll Memorial field.

Right: Hewes Library began major renovations over the summer that continued through the school year.

Some of the changes include air conditioning, coffee lounge, and windows for more light.

OF VIEW...

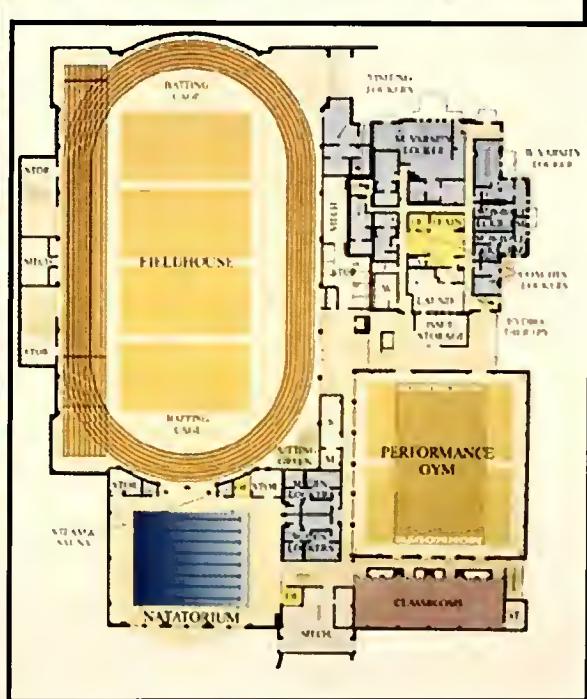

Ben & Jerry's, located in Scotland Yard, is one of the favorites for MC students.

The Stockdale Center also underwent remodeling.

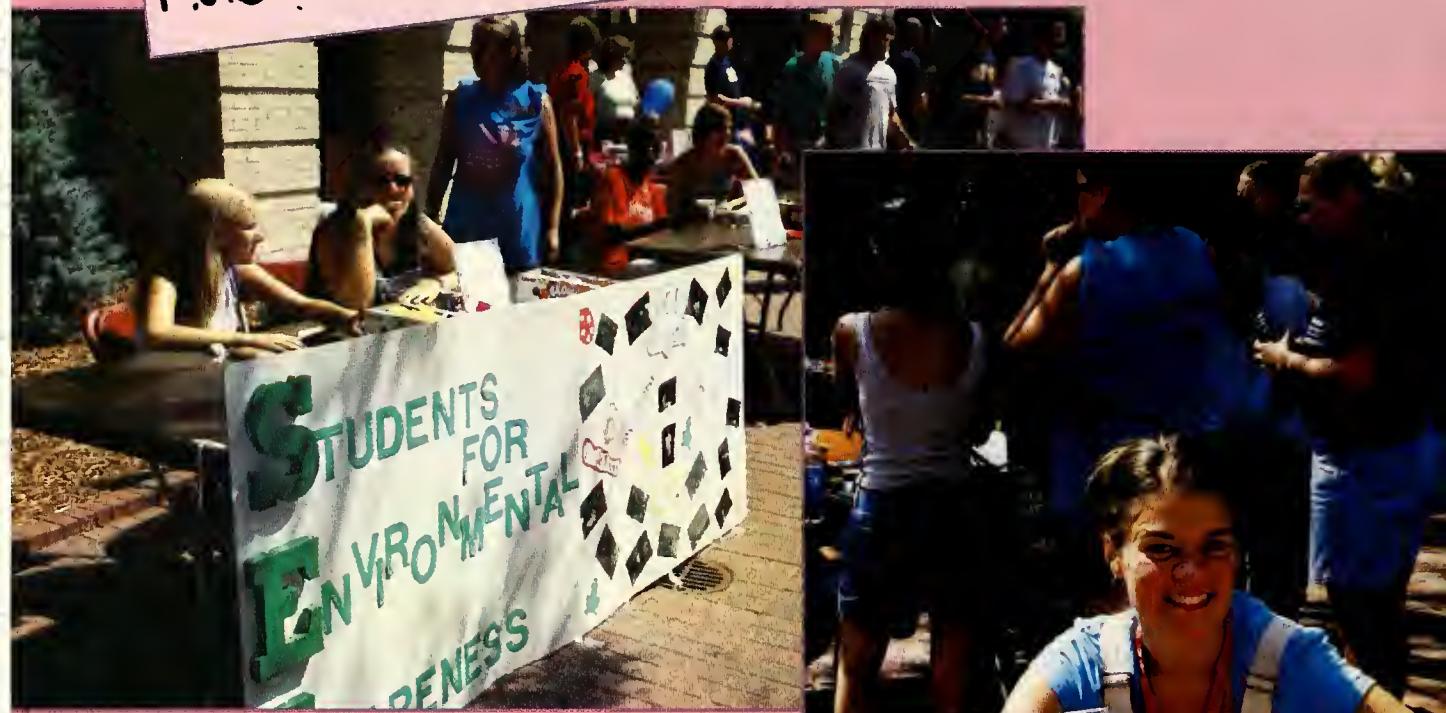

The Scots Market convenient store carries all the basic snack necessities when cramming for that next big test or when you're just in a hurry. Inside the cafeteria, students are offered a variety of foods from cheese fries to rotisserie chicken.

A new training room now stands over what once was the pool in Glennie Gymnasium. Around the training room, men's and women's locker rooms were also remodeled. A new swimming pool and indoor track will be one of the many features of the indoor athletic facility.

New Student Orientation

Students were introduced to all the clubs and organizations Monmouth College has to offer during the Involvement Fair. Both students and professors were available to hand out information and to answer any questions.

Students enjoyed free slinkys from Professor Feldman and the WMCR staff as well as candy and brochures from various other organizations.

The Pieces Fit...

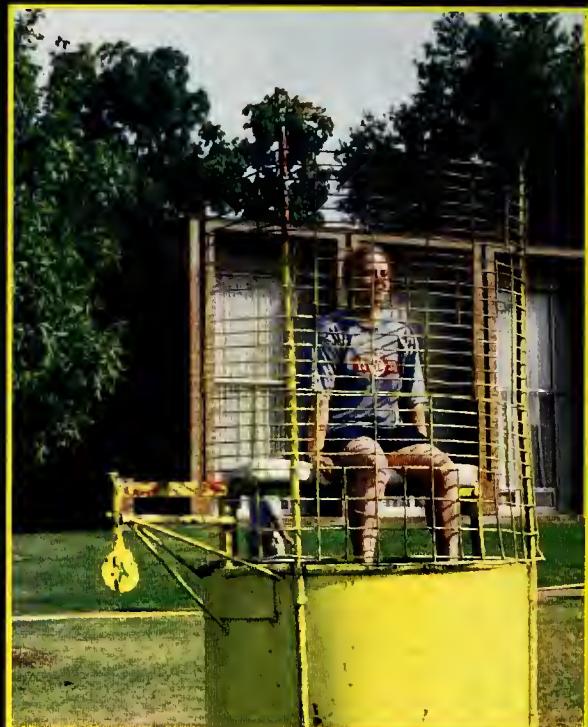

The most important job of an orientation leader is to make the students feel welcome. These leaders are selected by the college based upon both academic and social excellence. The select students then arrive on campus a week early. They participate in name games and trust walks so they can use these methods to help their orientation groups get to know one another.

The 2001 New Student Orientation began with a bit of rain as leaders and other campus groups helped new students move in. The dark clouds disappeared in time for a sunny matriculation ceremony. The weekend continued in its traditional splendor as freshmen met one another and began to form new friendships. Activities like the ice cream social and play day allowed them to relax and have fun while they talked with their peers. "I thought play day was really good because we got out and met tons of people," said Freshman Rosalynn Lizaro. The leaders helped make the theme, "MC--where all the pieces fit together," a reality.

WEEKEND

It was all fun and games at Monmouth College Family Weekend 2001. The weekend began with the showing of the movie "Big" for families and students to enjoy. On Saturday, the quad was decorated as Candyland where students and their families could climb a rock wall, race against each other in the obstacle course, or slide down the gigantic inflatable slide. Several students and family members enjoyed the cotton candy and had their pictures taken with the life-size gingerbread boy and girl. The fun-filled Saturday concluded with the amazing Chris Carter, who astonished the audience with his unbelievable mind reading performance. The family weekend activities were sponsored by ASAP and enjoyed by all who participated.

MULTICULTURAL FAIR

Where could students experience exotic food, fair, and fun at the same location? At the Multicultural Fair! This year the 7th annual Multicultural Fair was held on Saturday, Oct. 6, 2001 in the Glennie Gymnasium. The event started at 11 a.m., but the preparation and the excitement for the event began long before, especially for the international students. This being one of the main events for the International Club, they were looking forward to making this event another big success like previous years. On the Friday before the event, all students who were preparing food from their native countries met in the cafeteria and prepared the mouth-watering dishes from around the world.

The event began on Saturday with "Jawaahir," a dance group from St. Paul, Minn., who performed belle dances. Traditionally from Turkey, these female dancers awed the audience of students, professors, and Monmouth residents with their skillful dances. Also performing in the event were "The Jose Valdez and the Mambo Group" from Chicago. They performed a good selection of Spanish songs, which the audience seemed to enjoy as they savored the dishes. Students as well as the professors and members of the local community complimented the students on the food that they prepared.

All the countries represented at Monmouth College had their country booths with handicrafts, pictures, and local souvenirs, transforming the Glennie Gym into a global village. The international students were also dressed in their respective native attire.

The Multicultural Fair has been a medium for the minority students at Monmouth College to share their life experiences with the community. Promoting similar kinds of programs would not only help create a better understanding of diversity within the college, but would also help everyone appreciate the differences that enrich life experiences.

--Sagun Manandhar

Homecoming has been a major part of the Monmouth College history, and still continues to bring the Scots' spirit together. Homecoming 2001 went over with much hurrah and many booms as an Hawaiian theme erupted the campus into full spirit. With the collaborative effort of the Association for Student Activity Programming (ASAP), and the Alumni office, Homecoming 2001 was able to once again bring a fireworks display to the MC student body and alumni. The annual events, such as the Homecoming parade, spirit shout competition, Homecoming court, banner contest, and the second annual "Decorate Downtown" were very well supported by the MC students and organizations. As the MC campus continues to grow and expand rapidly, it is very difficult to find a place to hold the historical bonfire, and this year was the first in many that supporting Scots fans were not huddled around a bonfire to build up the cheer. This, however, did not stop the wonderful Fighting Scots fans and alumni from showing up and celebrating at our luau. As the years roll by, I believe that Homecoming 2001 will be a keepsake memory for many in years to come.

Go Scots!

Cross Country

The men's and women's Fighting Scots Cross Country teams both had very successful seasons filled with steady improvements, highlighted with strong finishes at the conference meet. In his sophomore campaign as cross country coach, Roger Haynes guided the Fighting Scots to their best conference finish in several years.

On the men's side, a trio of All-Conference selections: Charlie Sunderlage (11th), Matt Hargleroad (12th) and Cory Shook (14th) led the Scots to a strong second place finish behind meet host Grinnell. Sunderlage earned his second consecutive All-Conference selection. Other runners who played important roles in the Scots' success throughout the season included juniors Brian Bittner, Aaron Calder, Frank Clark, David Dare, and sophomore Aaron Wright.

The women's team had a talented mixture of new runners and veteran leadership that formed a competitive team which finished seventh at the conference meet. Junior Lindsey Whately paced the Scots in her first season. Other key contributions came from sophomore Elizabeth Altekruze, juniors Philicia Moredock and Patricia Wesson, and also freshman Jeana Fowler. Other valuable runners were juniors Jennifer Latchford, Katie McGee, Lauren Wesolowski and transfer student Becky Duncan. Junior Krista Hepner ran well for the Scots before being called into active duty by the National Guard.

WOMEN'S GOLF

The 2001 season of women's golf had a familiar look to last year as the team returned 6 of 8 players. Coached by second year coach Bill Turner, the third year program is right on schedule to becoming the conference's premiere team. Playing a schedule where almost every weekend they were competing against the top Division III golf programs in the region led to increased confidence. The top five players returning from last year--Nicole Auclair, Liz Gard, Molly McNamara, Amy Rassman and Michelle Vazquez--all improved upon their individual scoring averages.

The team regularly finished where they were expected to and sometimes surprised their competition. The second place finish at the conference tournament concluded the fall season. The team placed 3 on the All-Conference team which included McNamara who finished 2nd, Rassman who placed 9th and Vazquez who placed 10th.

Throughout the year the members of the team set new personal lows and broke their team record several times. The continued success might surprise most people who follow golf, but with the attitude and work ethic of the team they expect nothing but success now and in the future.

FOOTBALL

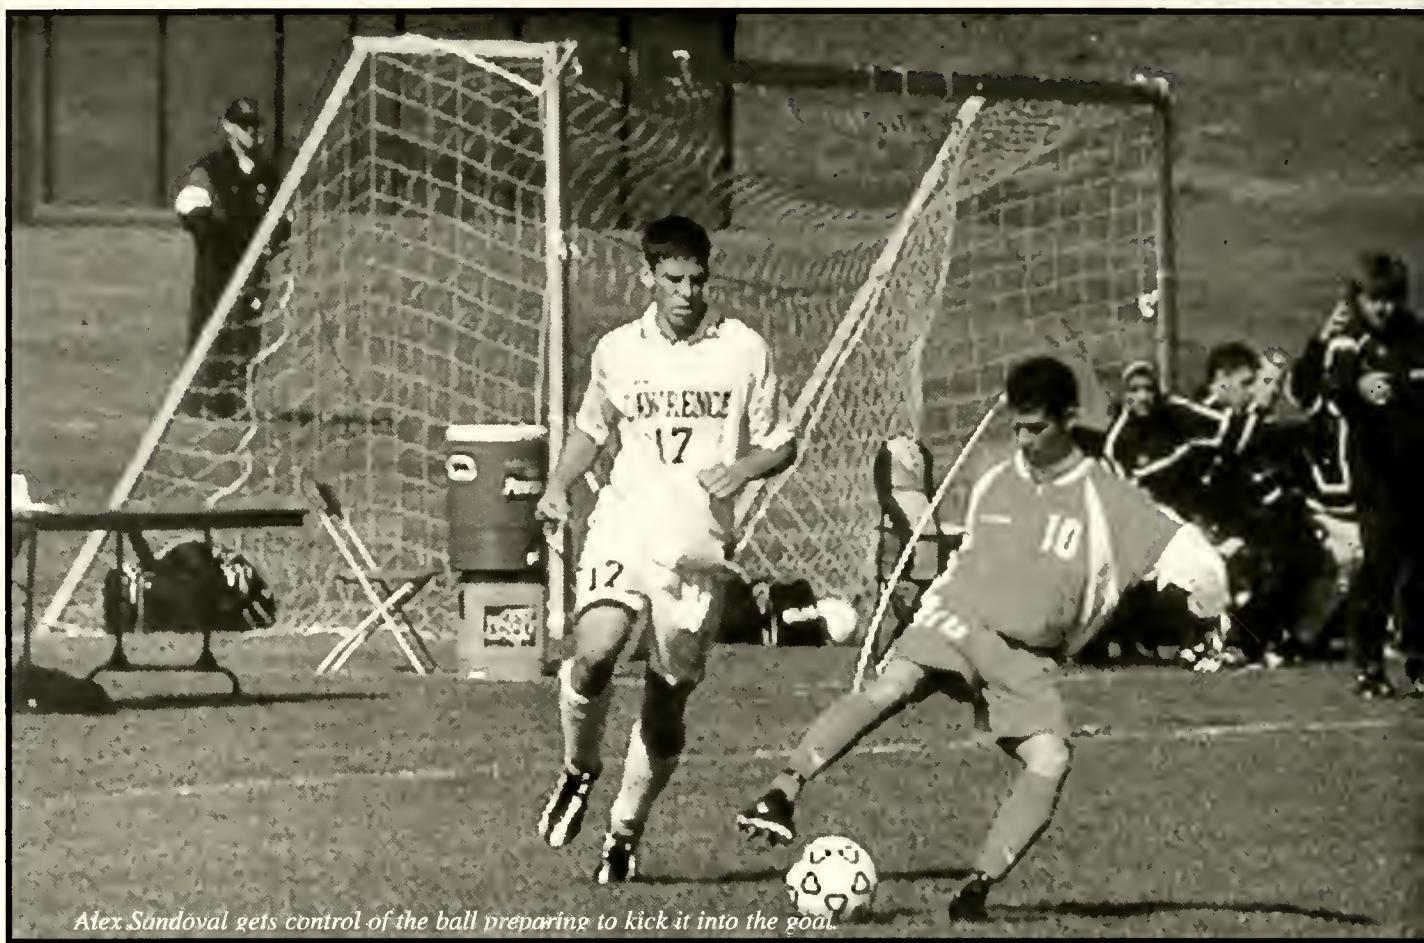

THE PRIDE IS BACK

After a 3-7 record in the 2000 football season, the Fighting Scots came ready to turn their program around in August of 2001. With a final record of 8-2, and a third place taking in the conference, the Scots accomplished what they set out to do. Their success did not start with the two weeks of horribly painful doubles, but rather with the months of hard work in the weight room and on the track in the off season. With the season opener against Eureka College, the Scots embarrassed their opponents and started off a beautiful season. The only two bumps along the way were two very tough games that ended in defeat against the co-champions of the Midwest Conference. The biggest highlight would have to be the complete domination by the Scots against their long-time rival, Knox College. The Scots retained the Bronze Turkey for the third straight year with a final score of 36-3. Senior offensive lineman Nick Detman summed up the season by stating that the "Fighting Scots hiked up their kilts and showed the Midwest Conference what we're made of." For the younger guys it was a great way to start a program, and for the seniors, it was a great way to end their careers in football. The twenty-two seniors can lead all of the players and supporters in truly saying, that "the Pride is Back" in Monmouth Fighting Scots football.

The Monmouth College men's soccer team had an outstanding year demonstrating their skills and determination. The men proved that they had what it takes to win. They finished the season with a record of 10-6-2, their first winning season in 5 years. It was a year of great accomplishments for the men's team. Coached by Rue Carthew, the team finished third in the Midwest Conference during the regular season and qualified for the MWC tournament. At the tournament they succeeded in winning the Midwestern Conference title for the first time in the program's 30-year history. Also by winning the MWC tournament the men qualified for the NCAA Division III national tournament.

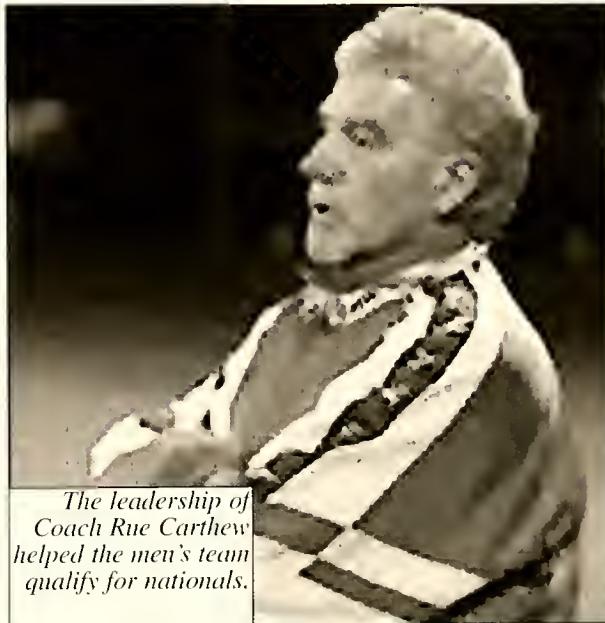

After a successful year numerous players received recognition within the Conference. Senior goalkeeper Joel Cowan and Coach Carthew were named Midwest Conference MVP and coach of the year. Cowan was joined by teammates Jeff Samp, Zach Hampson, and Alex Sandoval on 1st team all MWC. Despite a year of numerous injuries to key players, the men did the most with what they had and fulfilled their highest expectations of winning the championship and qualifying for the NCAA tournament.

WOMEN'S SOCCER

Sarah Comeaux, the new head women's soccer coach was asked to do the impossible--take a group of women who had never laid eyes on one another, and mold them into a team. At the very first practice, Comeaux observed the extremely different styles of play among each of her players, and realized she was in for a big challenge. During pre-season training, the new coach used a combination of drills that were both physically and mentally demanding in order to shape and unify her team.

Comeaux was benevolent in her efforts, but the constant dedication and hard work of her players received little reward, as the Lady Scots ended the season winless and disheartened. Most often, however, the final score did little to reflect the determination the women displayed during games. Despite several injuries that left them without substitutes, Comeaux and her players carried on and at the season's end no one could deny that these women had truly become a team. In the future that team is looking forward to winning.

VOLLEYBALL.....

Upon entering Glennie Gymnasium for a Monmouth College women's volleyball match, spectators might have been puzzled by the Lady Scots' pre-game ritual. Created by three talented upperclassmen, the song was designed to unify the team before focusing intensity on winning the game at hand. This was only one of the signature elements to the team.

With the assortment of seventeen extremely knowledgeable and talented women, the season was bound to be exciting. The Scots finished the year with a 23-11 record. Only one other squad in Monmouth College history has won more games in a season. The varsity squad was comprised of five seniors, two juniors, one sophomore, and nine freshmen. Holding down the Fighting Scots' offense was setter Megan Harris, middle hitter Jaime Jones, and outside hitter Tracy Nelson. Adding to the Scots' offense was Melissa Jones and Ashley Koller. Captains were Jaime Jones and Becky Lang.

Every aspect of the game seemed to be covered by the team, whether it was the immaculate serve receive of Ashley Koller and Maria Shepard, or the amplified voice of Amy Bender. One highlight came when the team traveled to Georgetown, Texas, to participate in a tournament hosted by Southwestern University. The Scots took Texas by storm, posting a 3-1 record. Other tournaments deserving recognition were the River City Classic in which the Scots placed second, and also the Knox Tournament.

After a first place finish at the Knox Tournament, it was time to think about Conference. The team finished fifth out of nine teams. In reference to the conference tourney, coach Kari Shimmin stated, "It's not a true double elimination tournament. Once you lose that first match, the best you can do is fifth place." The fifth place tournament finish isn't indicative of the spectacular play the team impressed audiences with. Many individuals had record setting years.

Jaime Jones will leave Monmouth College with the all time career kill record, formerly held by Coach Kari Shimmin, as well as records for most kills in a season and kills per game. The intensity of Megan Harris in the setting position earned her a spot in the record books as well for most set assists in a season, single game, and tops the charts at most assists in the college's history. Rounding out the record setting pace was Maria Shepard who ended the season only three aces shy of a single season record. All conference selections by the Midwest Conference coaches included First Team Jaime Jones and Second Team Tracy Nelson and Melissa Jones.

The success of the individuals on the team is only as great as the teammates who helped them get there. Communication, unity, and enthusiasm are attributes to successful teams. With the loss of the seniors comes new strength for the future, in which the volleyball program can grow on.

Thanks to all those who supported and cheered for the volleyball team this season; it didn't go unnoticed. May super fans and MCVB live on forever.

MEN'S BASKETBALL

A Season On the Brink

It was definitely a season on the brink for the men's basketball team as Monmouth's 2001-02 basketball campaign was full of ups and downs. At times the men seemed as if they were on the brink of greatness while other times they seemed as if they were toeing the edge of the canyon of horrendousness.

The Fighting Scots began their season with a very promising showing against Division II powerhouse Southern Illinois University in Edwardsville. The Scots had a chance to take the lead in the game with less than two minutes to go but were unable to convert on three straight possessions and consequently lost by five points. It seemed as if the rest of the Scots' season followed the same pattern of the SIUE game. The Scots were always good enough to be in the game but were often not good enough to win the close games.

The men ended their season with a victory at Knox College and just missed the conference tournament by one game. Of the season, head basketball coach Terry Glasgow commented, "We lost a lot of tough games early in the season. The guys showed a lot of fortitude and hung in all year, though. We battled back and had a chance for the playoffs clear through the last game. I can't fault their effort at all."

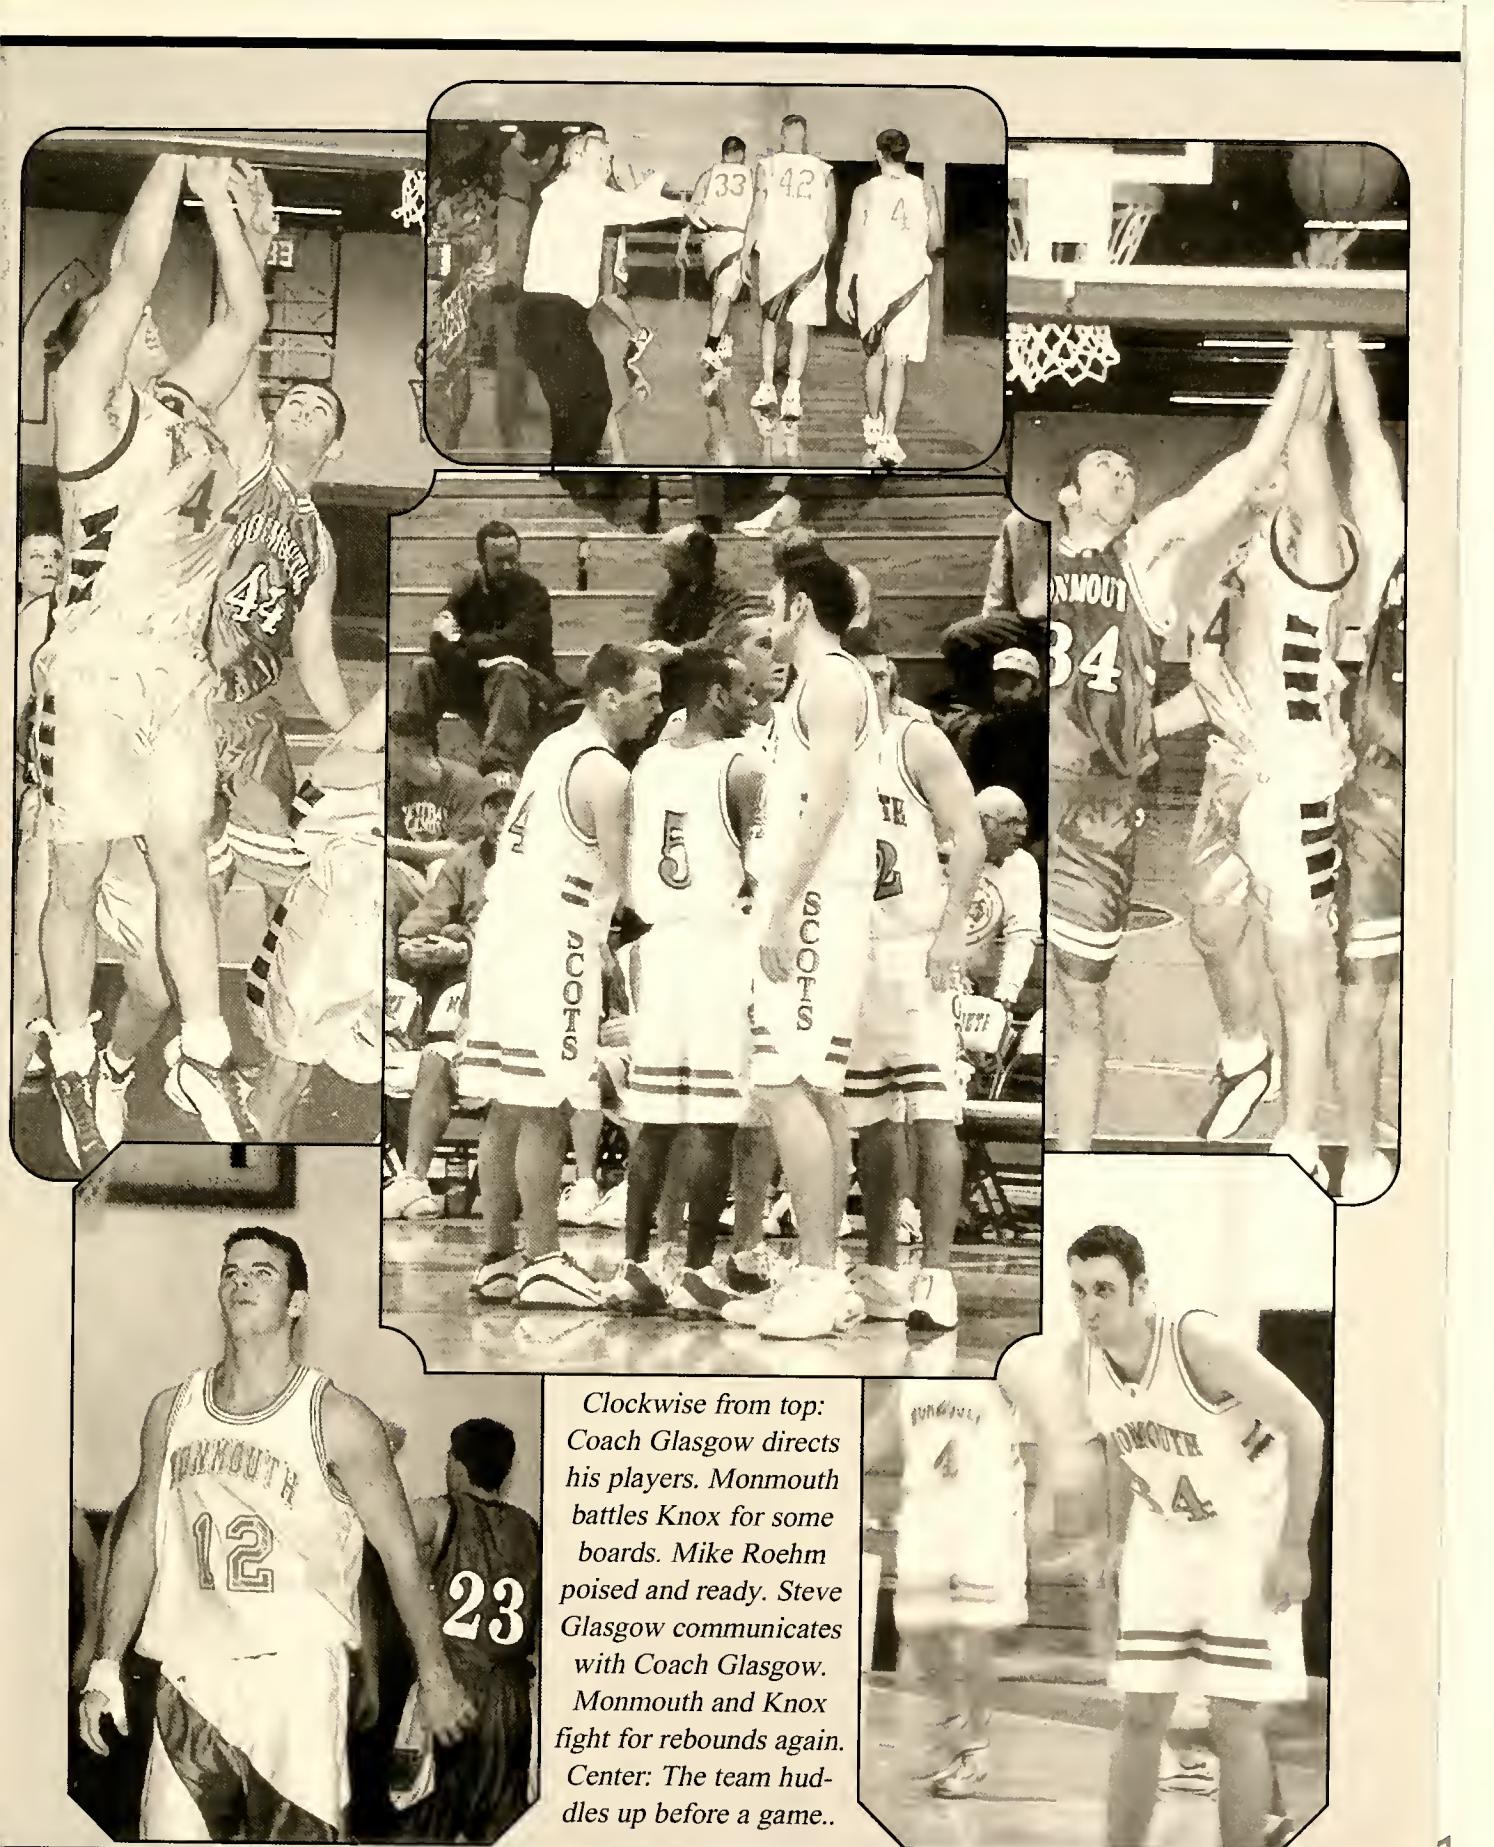

Senior Steve Glasgow was selected for the All-Midwest Conference men's basketball team for the fourth straight year. Also joining in the honors was senior Kenny Spranger who made the eight-man honorable mention team.

With five graduating seniors the Scots will be quite young for the next season. However, the Scots will be returning seniors Dan Mahoney and Troy Bennet to their lineups along with Rob Purlee. It will be up to these three to provide leadership both on and off the court for the team. Other Scots that will be asked to make a significant contribution are guards Travis Miller, Nick Swing, and Tyler Snyder along with big men Jason Murren and Lorenzo Pugh.

With a strong nucleus returning, the Scots should be expected to compete with the top teams in the Midwest Conference.

Women's Basketball

With a team full of talented women, it was somewhat of a disappointing season for the Lady Scots who finished just 5-11 in the Midwest Conference and 5-18 overall.

The women played perhaps their most entertaining game of the year against St. Norbert College, a team that is a perennial playoff squad, in what some claimed to be the best Monmouth women's basketball game they have ever seen, as the Scots pulled away a victory 74-72.

Despite their hard effort, a disappointing season came to a disappointing end when the Knox Prairie Fire stole their final game on a last minute 3-pointer to win 60-58.

Junior Melissa Jones was named to the All-MWC second team, marking the third year Jones has earned All-MWC honors. Jones will enter the 2002-03 season needing just 33 points to join the exclusive 1,000 point club.

Senior Carrie Yerkey was named to the All-MWC second team. Yerkey was fifth in assists and seventh in assists-to-turnover ratio in the MWC.

The Scots break for a time out to talk things over.

The indoor Midwest Conference meet held at Knox College was a big weekend for both the men's and women's track teams as they defeated rival Carroll College to take home the championship trophy. The men defended their title from the previous year and the women regained their title after losing it to Carroll just last year.

It was the men's seventh indoor championship in eight years and the women's fifth championship in seven years.

Several athletes were named conference champions, while others were successful in setting new school and conference records, and meeting the national qualifying standards.

On the men's team, senior David Hodge won both the long jump and triple jump. Freshman Keenan King won the 55m and the 200m as well as placing third in the 55m hurdles and second in the pole vault competition. The 4x200m relay placed first, setting a new school record, and the 4x400m relay finished first which qualified them for the national meet. Individual national qualifiers were senior Scott Stanton in the 55m hurdles and sophomore Ryan Moll in the 400m.

The women's team proved just as successful. Junior Cheris Beaty placed second in the pole vault competition setting a new school record. Junior Melissa Jones won the high jump and also qualified for the national meet. Junior Kara Kahrts won both the long jump and triple jump, qualifying for nationals in both events and setting a new school record in the triple jump. Winning three individual championships was junior Philicia Moredock in the 55m, 55m hurdles, and the 400m. She qualified for nationals in all three events.

King, Hodge, Kahrts, and Moredock were named outstanding performers at the conference meet. Head Coach Roger Haynes was named Midwest Conference Coach of the Year.

The NCAA Division III National Championships were held at Northern Ohio University. Jones and Stanton received All-American honors in their events by placing among the top six in their event. Jones placed fourth in the high jump with a jump of 5'5.25" and Stanton finished fifth in the 55m hurdles with a time of 7.66 seconds.

MIDWEST CONFERENCE TOURNAMENT CHAMPIONSHIP

HOSTED BY MONMOUTH COLLEGE

It was a rough start for the Monmouth College baseball season, but in the end coach Sander had won his first championship in his nine years as head coach.

After going 6-10 the first half of the season, the men came back to win the South Division. The Fighting Scots defeated rival Knox College to clinch home field for the MWC Baseball Conference Championship Tournament at Glasgow Field.

Although the weather was bad, the cold and rain proved favorable to the Scots. The baseball team was named winner of the MWC conference championships after rain cancelled the second day of action.

In the double elimination tournament, Monmouth was the only team undefeated after the first round of action earning them the MWC title.

The win also earned the Scots an NCAA tournament berth as well a chance to host the first round of the national tournament at Glasgow field.

The Scots' season began in Florida where the women finished 8-6 with a good outlook toward the conference season and even the conference title.

The Scots lost to St. Norbert College 8-0 in five innings for the 2002 MWC Championship.

Nicole Auclair, Vanessa Madison, Shelly Orwig, and Jen Witmer were named as All-Conference players. Witmer received South Division Player of the Year honors as well.

Scots Sweep the MWC in Track & Field

The two-day long MWC Championships were hosted by Ripon College in Wisconsin.

On the first day of competition, both the men's and women's teams put themselves in good scoring positions, sending most athletes to the finals for Saturday.

The men and women battled through the cold and rain in the finals, winning several event championships and finishing in scoring positions.

At the end of the day, the Scots won both 4x400m relays to ensure themselves a team victory on both sides.

For the women, Jill Hoops was named outstanding performer for her first place finishes in the 100m hurdles, 100m dash, 400m hurdles, and the 4x400m relay, as well as her second place finish among the 4x100m relay. Kara Kuhrt shared the title for the field events with two first place finishes in the sand.

On the men's side, Keenan King was outstanding performer for his first place finishes in the 100m dash, 4x100m relay, and 4x400m relay, and a second place finish in the 200m dash.

Monmouth coach Roger Haynes was undoubtedly named MWC Coach of the Year for his teams' performances.

But the conference meet didn't end the season for the Scots as many athletes were among national qualifiers for the NCAA Division III National Championships to be held in Minnesota two weeks following the conference meet.

While many students headed home or to a warm vacation spot for spring break, 20 MC students and two advisers traveled to Colorado for alternative spring break.

The participants stayed in Littleton at the Way Station, run by the Littleton United Methodist Church. The students and advisers spent the week working in Denver at Project Angel Heart, where they made and delivered meals to terminally ill patients, and the Denver Rescue Mission, where they helped with cleaning, serving, painting, and other odd jobs.

At the end of the trip, the group took one day to do some sight-seeing. They visited the Garden of the Gods and Cave of the Winds.

Brandi McCoy, one of the students who went on the trip said, "It was an awesome experience and it makes you realize that no service is insignificant. Everyone appreciated everything we did, no matter how small."

BRONZE TURKEY

The exact date has been long forgotten, but the rivalry that was begun on a football field in 1891 between Monmouth and Knox colleges will never be lost. The two schools have each celebrated their own share of highs and lows in the long and colorful series.

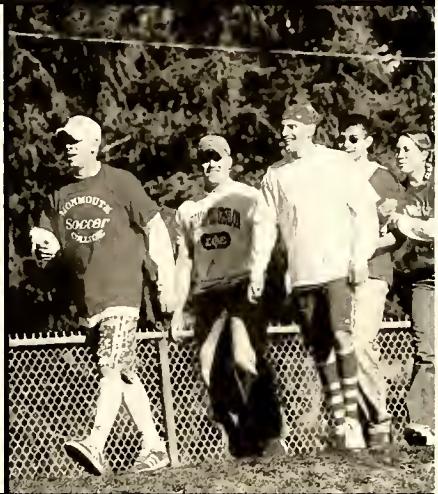

In the fall of 2000, the Scots pulled ahead in the series 51-50-10. This year, in their 112th meeting, the Scots were able to improve their lead in the series, beating the Knox Prairie Fire 36-3 to retain the game's victory trophy, the "Bronze Turkey."

At the end of the game players raised their helmets to celebrate a Monmouth victory.

Many MC students came to cheer on the Fighting Scots in their quest for the Bronze Turkey.

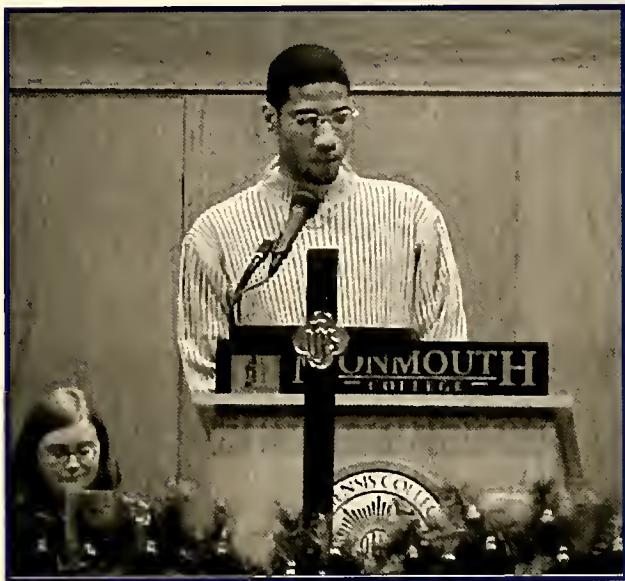

Christmas

The Auditorium was dressed up in garland and evergreen boughs. There was a small pine tree on stage complete with gift wrapped boxes, and there were candles galore to light up the large cross on the center table. This year's Christmas convocation, which included a candlelit moment of reflection with a hand held candle for each participant, was very meaningful to both the listeners and the readers. The event was sponsored by various spiritual groups from the campus, including the Chaplain's office and the Student Chaplains, with readers ranging from President Giese and other administrators to faculty to students.

Convocation

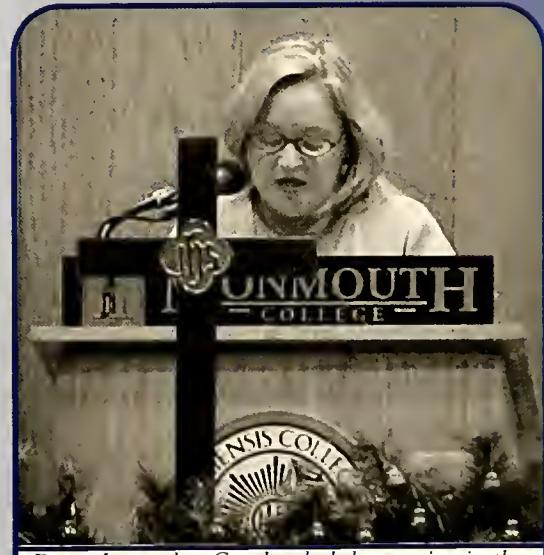

Senior Tony Miles reads a piece to the crowd.

The woman responsible for it all reads her piece.

We receive cards and letters from dear ones...there are many who have no one to love them. We sit down to a Christmas dinner, a table of abundance...there are those who long for just a small portion of food and find none. We feel love and goodness from those around us...there are people terrorized by death squads and tortured in prisons. We open our many gifts, most of which are not needed...there are those who have no gifts to give or to receive. We are welcomed by friends, family, and acquaintances... there are persons who are mocked, ridiculed, disdained, or ignored because of their race and religion. We return to the security of our homes...there are countless homeless who have no dwelling place to which they can return. Forgive us, O God, when we are so caught up in our own comfortable, cozy spaces that we fail to recognize your presence in the world. Help us to see your love shining through the windowed hearts of Earth's people, and to open our hearts too, that we might live as Jesus would have us live, with the light of his love shining through all we say and do. In his name we offer this prayer. Amen.

Dean Jacquelyn Condon led the service in the Prayer of Confession (left).

Dr. James De Young leaves Monmouth College after 39 years and over 100 plays.

"It's those memories that are long lasting...they are what a teacher lives off-seeing that you have had a part in a student's life."

The Visit

The Broadway production of "The Visit" was a Drama Critics' Circle Award winner starring Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in 1958. The play is a creepy tragicomedy that tells the story of a rich and flamboyant woman who returns to the economically depressed village of her birth and offers to donate a large sum of money to get the town back on its feet. Unfortunately, there is a chilling condition to get the gift and the moral fiber of every resident is put to the test.

"Initially," said director Jim De Young, "I was seeing the play as a study of the insidious effects of human greed; now, with the events of Sept. 11 still on the mind, I am just as aware of how it speaks to the sickness of uncontrolled, festering revenge."

Millionairess Claire Zachanassian (L. Raines) dismisses the town rector's (K. Anderson) alternate proposal of rising above her revenge and helping the people of her home town, rather than punishing them.

Professor Sue Holm captivates the audience
as she stages "The Vagina Workshop."

The Vagina Monologues is a series of monologues composed by Eve Ensler after a series of interviews with New York Women. They cover everything from tampons to orgasms. Each monologue represents a certain woman, but can be identified with by many women. The VM has been performed in countries all over the world and has raised billions of dollars to help stop violence against women and girls. The mission of the VM is to reclaim Valentines day as V-day (Vagina Day) until the violence around the world stops. All proceeds from the show go to organizations that help eradicate violence.

The Monmouth College production went up on V-day and had three showings. Twenty women and a couple of wonderful men made the show a success. The VM were sponsored by the Coalition for Women's Awareness, Crimson Masque, and People Respecting Individual Sexuality at Monmouth. The Monmouth College production of the Vagina Monologues was part of a College campaign. This means that the show was directed and performed primarily by students, that no one was paid to be in the show, and that all proceeds went to a charity of the group's choice. The production raised over $1000. Ten percent of the proceeds went to the women of Afghanistan and the rest of the proceeds went to Safe Harbor in Galesburg, Illinois.

--Amanda Caldwell, Director

You're invited to...

Written by esteemed German playwright Bertolt Brecht, A Respectable Wedding is far from the typical "Brechtian" play. It is one of his earliest works, and it was written before he developed his trademark style known as epic theater.

The story revolves around a newlywed couple, played by Elizabeth Kline and Brandon Grear, who are having both of the families over for a housewarming party. The result is every bad memory of a family get together rolled into one and then some.

The families bicker back and forth over the food, everyone takes turns flirting with everyone else's mate, there is far too much food forced down the guests' throats, the furniture breaks under the slightest pressure, and to top all of that off, the bride is pregnant and it is starting to show.

The play is an ensemble piece, with no particular role standing too far above any other as far as stage time and spotlight. The players, Kline, Grear, Aaron Cluka, Tom Hill, Phil Johnson, Lisa Rzeszutko, Tina Mayer, Tom Scott, and Emily Mitsdarffer, played off each other, playing up the laughs and comedy found in the piece, another sign that the piece was written early in Brecht's career.

Commencement

Umbrellas were as common as caps and gowns for Monmouth College's 2002 Commencement. And even though the traditional ceremony was held inside Glennie Gym instead of outside on Wallace Plaza, spirits weren't dampened for the 237 graduating seniors of the Class of 2002.

Dr. Stanley E. Chism, co-founder of The Cancer Care Institute in San Jose, Calif., and a 1963 Monmouth graduate, was the featured speaker at the 145th commencement ceremony at Monmouth College.

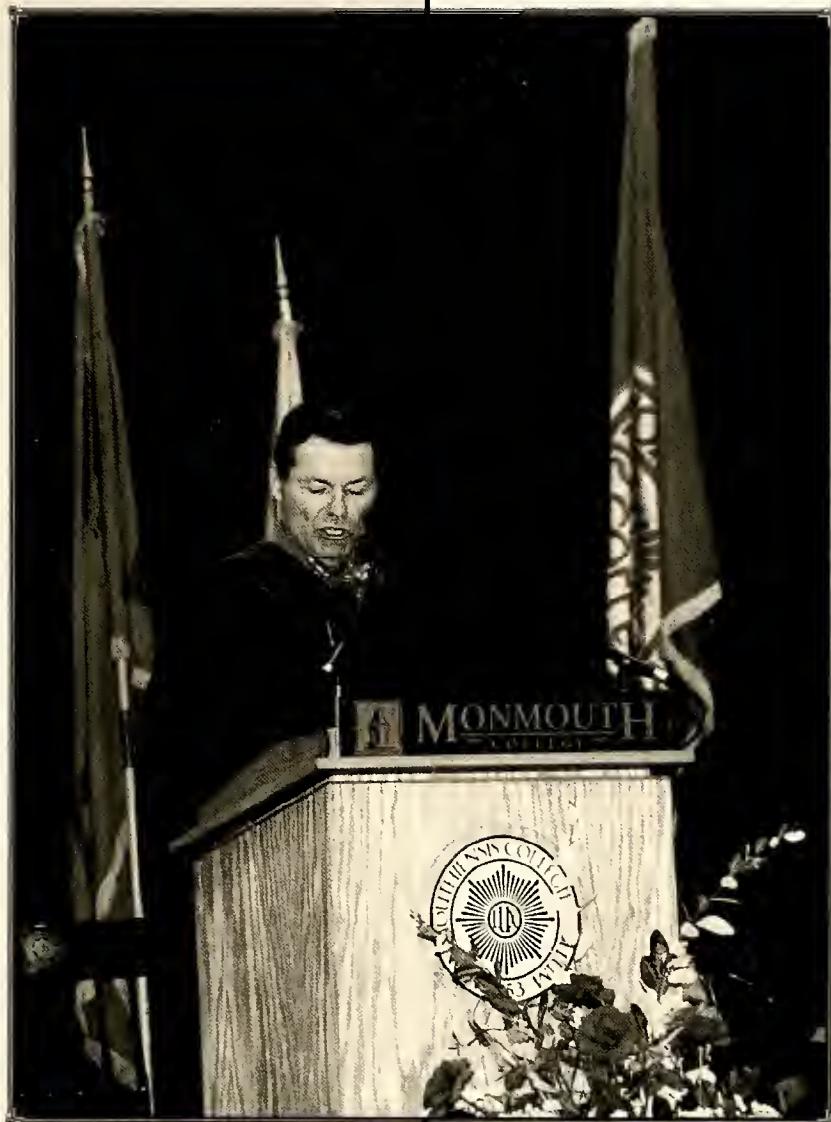

The recipient of Monmouth's Young Alumnus Award in 1973,

Chism was given the Distinguished Alumnus Award in 1999. Before co-founding The Cancer Care Institute, Chism's career path in medicine took him to New England and Australia, as well as several locations in California.

Chism came to Monmouth from Newton, Iowa, and was involved in numerous campus activities, including Blue Key and Tau Kappa Epsilon. He was elected the Outstanding Freshman Man, president of the sophomore class and TKE president. Chism earned his medical degree from the University of Iowa in 1967.

"Dr. Chism has lived a life of continuous learning," said college president Richard F. Giese. "He is a tremendous role model for our students, and I'm sure he'll serve as an inspiration to them as well."

Chism often says that Monmouth College instilled in him a lifelong love of learning, and as proof, he is currently enrolled in the master's of liberal arts program at Stanford University. A bicycling enthusiast, Chism has toured extensively throughout America and Europe, including trips with his wife, Karen Barrett Chism, a 1965 Monmouth graduate and a trustee on the Monmouth College board.

Chism will be the first Monmouth graduate to deliver the commencement address since professor emeritus David Allison '53 spoke in 1996 along with two other retiring faculty members.

SCOTS

“President Giese, when you suggested to me that the graduates might want to hear from an alumnus about life after Monmouth College, you provoked me to think critically about what the liberal arts degree has meant for me. I have concluded that it is a rich degree, and most importantly that it is a degree to get a life, rather than a degree to get a job. I have greatly enjoyed its productivity and I predict these graduates will, too.”

Dr. Stanley E. Chism '63 being conferred with an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree from Monmouth College President, Richard F. Giese.

“Life entails a lot of unpredictable surprises. Sometimes these surprises close doors and our opportunities vanish, and we miss out on the chance to tell somebody that we love them, admire them, or simply that we appreciate them. A few timely unsolicited words have a powerful lingering effect on the beneficiary.”

“Critical thinking is a process; it is a habit. It is an intelligence by which you learn to analyze ideas, question the assumptions of your teachers, identify the logic of other people’s arguments, discriminate usefully between fact and fancy, and by which you synthesize this tangle of information to arrive at your own conclusion.”

“Many of my highly achieved medical colleagues, late in their careers, comment that they wished they had committed more time to matters of general cultural concern such as family, literature, art, history, philosophy, and fun...that is, to the realm of the liberal arts. But not a single colleague has ever told me that they wished they had spent more time at the office working at their vocation. You will have to find your own balance between the vocational arts and the liberal arts in your future lives, but I hope you remember that a lot of people who have been there before you, if given a second chance, would change their emphasis from billable hours to quality hours spent with a good book, music, children, family, and friends. Lilly Tomlin condensed it perfectly when she chided the excessively driven: “Even if you win the rat race, you’re still a rat.”

Farewell to the College

When I was trying to find a topic about which to speak today, one thing kept coming to mind: speak about something you know, and what do I know better than myself. So I decided to speak about what I learned at Monmouth College.

We have had quite a bit of learning from textbooks in our years at Monmouth, and while that knowledge will greatly increase our chances for success, it cannot guarantee success. There is other knowledge that is equally important in determining success in life. People need knowledge of their field (text learning), but they also need social skills, the ability to think, the ability to feel...to name a few. These are things that we do not learn inside the classroom, but we still learn them in the Monmouth environment...in the organizations in which we participate, the leadership positions we hold, the friends we make, and so on. This is the knowledge I wish to discuss today. The following are those lessons, in my own words and aided by the words of others.

Life Lessons I Learned at Monmouth College:

- ❖ Not all things will go the way you want them to, but all things will go the way they should.
- ❖ Your experiences build your character.
- ❖ Character is what you know you are, not what others think you are.
- ❖ Here is some advice you may have heard. “Watch your thoughts, they become your words; watch your words, they become actions; watch your actions, they become your character; watch your character, it becomes your destiny.”
- ❖ Trials and tribulations, at Monmouth and after, serve to strengthen your character.

Brandi L. McCoy '02

Lincoln Laureate

- ❖ When you don't like the way something is done, don't complain about it. Do something to change it because if you always do what you always did, you'll always get what you always got.
- ❖ If you try pleasing everyone, you won't please anyone. You can only do what you think is best.
- ❖ If you never try, you never fail. But if you never fail, you never succeed.
- ❖ Margaret Thatcher: “You may have to fight a battle more than once to win it.”
- ❖ You may be disappointed if you fail, but you are doomed if you don't try.
- ❖ You must truly love yourself before someone else can truly love you.
- ❖ Say what you think or believe, especially when others disagree, for only then can a real debate ensue. But be open-minded.
- ❖ Ignorance is a catalyst for fear. What we don't know, we distrust. And what we distrust, we avoid and even despise. Don't be ignorant.
- ❖ General Patton: “If everyone is thinking alike, then somebody isn't thinking.”
- ❖ Madame Curie: “Nothing in life is to be feared. It is only to be understood.”
- ❖ Have faith in others, and others will have faith in you.
- ❖ No matter how successful you become, always remember those who helped you along the way.

by Brandi L. McCoy '02, Lincoln Laureate

Keep reminding them what they mean to you. You never know what a difference that will make in someone's life.

- ❖ We must not, in trying to think about how we can make a difference, ignore the small daily differences we can make which, over time, add up to big differences that we often cannot foresee.
- ❖ Laugh at yourself because if it will be funny later, it should be funny now. And remember to take time to have fun. What does success matter if one does not take time to enjoy it?

Whether it was through membership in a Greek organization, other student organization, an athletic team, or just walking around campus, Monmouth College has been a great environment for learning about ourselves and about life. And, while this may sound a bit trite, for many, Monmouth College really is "What college was meant to be."

I would like to leave you with a poem that I think applies very much to life after Monmouth College. It's called "Anyway."

People are unreasonable, illogical, and self-centered, Love them Anyway.

*If you do good, people will accuse you of selfish, ulterior motives,

If you are successful, you will win false friends and true enemies, Succeed Anyway.

*Honesty and frankness make you vulnerable,
Be frank and honest Anyway.*

*The good you do today will be forgotten tomorrow,

The biggest people with the biggest ideas can be shot down by the smallest people with the smallest minds, Think big Anyway.

*People favor the underdogs but follow only topdogs,
Fight for some underdogs Anyway.*

What takes a year to make can be destroyed over night, Build again Anyway.

*Give the world the best you have and you may get kicked in the teeth,
Give the world the best you have Anyway.*
